

I Still Haven't Found the Love I've been Looking For

(Adapted from I Still haven't Found What I'm Looking For & Betterman)

I have roamed from the Grand Canyon to the Great Wall
I have swam from London to New York
I have climbed Mount Everest
I have been to the Moon and back
But I still haven't found the love I've been looking for

I have sung hundreds of songs
I have stayed many late nights
I have spent thousands in fashion
I have been running for hundreds of miles
Wishing to be with you
Wishing to be with you

I have reached out to the sky
I have tried to find angels to catch my tears
To catch my tears, I'm in pain
And I still haven't found the love I've been looking for

I have kissed the Angel's lips
Felt the burning desire in her heart
And the healing in her blood-red finger nails
Then one day the Angel flew away to heaven
And I still haven't found the love I've been looking for

'Cause I held the hands of the devil
I felt cold as a stone
Send someone to love me
To walk me out of here, I'm in pain
As my heart and soul heal the shame
I will endure this pain
Lord, take me back in time
I will do anything
To be a good man

I know I have falling on stony ground
But go easy on my morals
'Cause I underwent mental metamorphosis
Though I've been told to carry the blame

Until the day the Angel returns
Until I rest in her arms
I still haven't found the love I've been looking for
I still haven't found the love I've been looking for